We cannot better close this brief record than by quoting the following paragraphs from an admirable article in the New York Tomes of January 30 strongly urging the resolute is of Mr. SEWARD

Six years ago he was elected Senator against a most earrest and vehement hostility—mainly personal and ressoulces beyond all doubt, but personal and reasonables beyond all doubt, but based upon a studied deprenation of his abilities, a systematic distortion of his opinions and a violent inscription of his personal more true and public aims. Probably no main ever true and public aims. Probably no main ever the record is atrong against him, the propriy days. To say that he has emerged from it, would but feelby express the magnitude of the triumph he has achieved ine has dearmed personal hostility by the frank and kindly manhiness of his demeanor, and has abamed maligarty into respect by the Christian courtesty which in healt could even for a moment string him to forget. He has taken an active and a prominent part in the discussion of every topic of general interest that hus engaged attention—treating them all with a degree of inery topic of general interest that has engaged attention—treating them all with a degree of intellectual vigor a clearness of judgmont and a variety of information that here compelled respect and vindicated his finess for the largest duties of public life. Fiver interest, and every section of the country is received from him equal and adequate devotion. He has present with equal ardor the claims of Commerce of Agriculture and Manufactures, he has vindicated with equal zeal, the just rapits and intrests of reculture and Manufactures, he has vindicated with equal zeal, the just rights and interests of the West and South, and those of the East and those of the Kotth There is not at this day in the Senate or in public life, a stateman of more ability—more laborious and conactentious in the discharge of public duties, or more thoroughly and truly national in all his views than Governor Sawann

Washington, Feb. 3.

The variety of character in the Senate is a subject of study. Judge Evans, of South Carolina, a very sedate, and, I have no doubt, a very honest man, without a suspicion asto the righteensness of slaveholding, sits nest Senator Wade, an equally honest man, but a most decided opponent of Slavery. Somebody sends very regularly to Mr. Evans a copy of The Liberator, (Garrison's paper,) which he reads attentively, but with the most profound and even verdentsstonishment. Turnwhich he reads attentively, but with the most profound and even variants attentioned in the most profound and even variants attentioned. Turning to his friend from Ohio, he exclaims, "Is n't it atominable that such a paper should be allowed in this country?" "Why," says Benator Wade "that's considered in our State as a most excellent family paper," "I am sorry to hear you say so," says the Judge, evidently much surprised. The temper of the times was illustrated lo-day, A Northern Senator, having reed the appeal in The Independent for subscriptions to pay the fine of S. M. Booth, collected among his colleagues quite a handsume sum toward that object, which greatly shocked the loyal faelings of Dooglas, Weller & Co.

An incident no less illustrative and significant occurred not long sincs.

A slave applied to one

An incident no less illustrative and significant occurred not long aimes. A slave applied to one of the Sonators from a Western State for a contribution to purchase his freedom. "Why the devil dont you ron away?" asked the Senator, adding, "I can't give money to huy slaves," The poor fellow was turning away desappointed, and the rest of the company, the Southern portion especially, opened their eyes. "Here," said the Senator, calling the negro back, "here's ten dollars; take that and run away, but don't ask me for money to buy a slave."

Here you see what treasonable characters there are even in the Senator of the United States. And what is more, they seem to be mercaning. But what is more, they seem to be uncreasing. But as Senator Wede said to Douglas, "What are you going to do about it?" going to do about it?"

Solier. He has been, we believe, in our Territoral Legislature, and has twice represented the State in Geogress. He is a man of good abilities, of open, many obstacter, and upon all the great questions will not omit or besitate to define his position. We of course are opposed to him upon the issue which has been the immediate cause of his election, but we respect him a thousand times more than we do any cowardly democrat who is shirking the question.—[Green Bay Advocate (Dem.)

The emigration has been so rapid in Adams Go, during the past year as to cause a rise in the price of lumber from 7 to 12 dollars per 1040 feet. The lumber Mills on the Legnonwier could not supply the home market. He has left the city, and captions have been issued for his arrest. Full particu-lars have not transpired.

Treason in the Senate.

Correspondence of the N. Y. Tribuns.

Washington, Feb. 3.

The variety of character in the Senate is a subject of study. Judge Evans, of South Carolins, a very sedate, and, I have no doubt, a very honest man, without a suspicion as to the righteousness of alaveholding, sits neat Senator Wade, an equally honest man, but a most decided opponent of Slavery. Somebody sends very regularly to Mr. Evans a copy of The Liberator, (Garrison's paper,) which he reads attentively, but with the most profound and even verdant attentishment. Turning to his friend from Ohio, he exclaims, "Is n't it alominable that such a paper should be allowed in this country?" "Why?" says is nater Wade "that's considered in our State as a most excellent family paper." "I am sorry to hear you say so," says the Judge, evidently much surprised. The temper of the times was illustrated to-diff, A Northern Senator, having read the appeal in The Independent for subscriptions to pay the fisse of S. M. Boeth, collected among his colleagues quite a handsune sum toward that object, which greatly shocked the loyal feelings of Douglas, Weller & Co.

An incident no less illustrative and significant gecurred not long since. A slave analyst to can. Treason in the Senate.

An incident no less illustrative and significant An incident no less illustrative and significant occurred not long since. A slave applied to one of the Senators from a Western State for a contribution to purchase his freedom. "Why the devil dont you run away?" saked the Senator, adding, "I can't give money to buy slaves." The poor fellow was turning away disappointed, and the rest of the company, the Southern portion aspecially, opened their eyes. "Here," said the Senator, calling the negro back, "here's ten dollars; take that and run away, but don't ask me for money to buy a slave."

Hera you see what treasoonable characters there are even in the Senator of the United States. And what is more, they seem to be increasing. But as Senator Wade said to Donglas, "What are you going to do shout it?"

going to do shoul it?"

The emigration has been so rapid in Adams 00, during the past year as to cause arise in the price of lumber from 7 to 12 dollars per 1000 feet.
